4. Discussion with attendees on AmeriHealth Caritas Louisiana's CARE Card, mobile app, and other member initiatives

Washington instructed with a PowerPoint presentation. He asked: "Of our members here, how many know what our CARE Card is?" He explained that it's a reloadable gift card that will allow members to earn money from attending certain things, such as doctor visits and screenings. "Even when there is not money on the card, you can still use it to get discounts on different things, with the exception of alcohol and tobacco items. You can use it at WalMart, Fred's, Dollar General, Walgreens, and CVS," Washington stated. A member asked if you receive points and Washington stated that instead of receiving points, you receive money. He explained that the rewards expire 12 months after receiving or after disenrollment and that they cannot be converted into cash. Diaz translated for Spanish-speaking members.

Washington explained to members that to receive rewards, you can complete the recommended health screenings such as A1C, diabetes, prenatal, postpartum, etc. He then explained that you can go to any WalMart in Louisiana and take their Health Risk

"You can find different doctors, different resources in your community, and your ID card," Washington said of the plan's mobile app. He showed members how to search for doctors, pharmacies, hospitals, and other resources in the app. He then showed members the messaging feature and how they can ask questions or request things like a new Member Handbook, all through the app. Diaz translated for Spanish-speaking members. Washington opened the floor to members and asked what they thought of the mobile app. Members thought that it was helpful, especially the feature that shows what medicines need to be taken. The only suggestions were alarms/notifications for when to take medicines and a spot for a list of allergies. Community partners said they would recommend it to members because the app would make it easier for them to pull a patient's information. Another community partner said it's a good way to help people understand what medications they're taking. Diaz translated for Spanish-speaking members.

5. Success stories, upcoming events, and further outreach to members

DeTricia Singleton introduced herself and her success story. Singleton explained how she was at a home visit with a member that was a mother. She noticed the hospital band on the baby's ankle and asked the mother what was going on with the child. "I know as a mother that I cannot take care of myself, until my children are taken care of," Singleton stated. She explained that the child was in the emergency room all night, but the member did not have transportation to pick up the medication. Singleton said she was able to pick up the medication for the child with permission from her supervisor and is still in contact with the mother. "This built a great relationship between our company and the mother," she said. Diaz translated for Spanish-speaking members.

Diaz then explained the upcoming Cinco de Mayo community event on May 6, 2018.

Washington thanked everyone for coming and said that we would keep in touch. Meeting was adjourned.
